AGED RESIDENT OF HILLCREST PASSES

There passed away at Hillcrest on Saturday last, April 27th, one of the oldest residents of the town in the person of Joseph Podgornik, aged around 74 years.

Funeral took place on Wednesday forenoon, with requiem high mass at the Hillcrest Catholic church. The remains were laid to rest in the St. Theresa cemetery.

A number of friends assembled at the residence for prayers at 8 p.m. on Tuesday.

Deceased was an old timer and very well known and highly respected throughout the district.

A. E. Ferguson, of the Crows' Nest Funeral Home, was in charge of arrangements.

He is survived by two sons and two daughters, residing in Hillcrest.

SALVATION ARMY JUNIOR CHOIR VISITS FERNIE

Last week the junior choir of the Salvation Army Coleman Corps visited Fernie, where a crowd of over a hundred and twenty-five persons gathered to hear them.

The programme took the form of a radio broadcast, and many popular items of the air were introduced, such as news flashes, quizzes, the Pelican man, etc. Children from the audience took part in some of these features, and in this way interest was kept at a high pitch throughout. The Fernie junior choir also assisted.

For the benefit of Pass residents, the performance will again be repeated in the Salvation Army hall, Coleman, on Wednesday, May 8th, at 8 p.m. This is something different. Don't miss it!

A GOOD ARGUMENT

The Athabasca Echo remarks: With the oft-recurring ban on the highway on account of muddy roads, the train service is likely to meet with popular favor. Even those with a private car will not need to risk a night in the ditch when they can be sure of a quick run, seven hours in the city, and home again in the evening. This event emphasizes again the handicap the ungravelled highway is to our northern development. Another injustice is that, while the trucks and buses are charged huge fees for 12 months' license, they are banned from using the highway for about two months. We think they have as just a claim for rebate as private cars which are laid up for the winter months. More so, because the operators are also losing their wages. It is a legitimate claim that should be tested.

W. North has purchased a Dodge car through the Sentinel Motors agency, Coleman.

MAY DAY CELEBRATED BY MINERS AT COLEMAN

Miners of the district, together with women and children, gathered at Coleman on Wednesday afternoon to celebrate Labor's day. Large truckloads of men, women and children from Bellevue, Hillcrest and Blaimore were conveyed to a point about midway between Blaimore and Coleman, where a procession was formed, led by the West Canadian Collieries' band, with the Coleman town band taking up a rear position. It was planned to hold an open air meeting near the arena, but a heavy wind and dust storm made a change in plans necessary, so that the Community hall was secured for the meeting. The chair was occupied by Max Stigler, and speakers included Mayor D'Appolonia, of Coleman; Mayor Williams, of Blaimore, and Tom Uphill, M.P.P. for Fernie. Enlivening selections were rendered by the West Canadian Collieries' band between speeches. While the adult meeting was in progress, thousands of treats in the shape of ice cream, pop and peanuts were handed out freely to the children at the arena.

The main speaker of the day was to have been Angus J. Morrison, secretary of District 18 of the U. M. W. of A., who, unfortunately, failed to arrive in time. Mr. Morrison arrived in Blaimore at a late hour that night, and is spending the week end in the district.

COST OF LIVING AGREEMENT

Steam and domestic coal operators and officials of District 18, United Mine Workers of America, have agreed an agreement whereby wage adjustments for the duration of the second great war, and for a year afterward, will be made through a federal government cost-of-living commission.

Under the agreement, the cost of living as at March 31st, 1938, has been accepted as the basis upon which future adjustments shall be made. Adjustments shall be made every six months, and wage decreases or increases will be awarded should cost of living fluctuate five per cent or more during each period.

A REWARD FOR HITLER'S APPREHENSION

A reward of $1,000,000 in cash has been offered by Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie Institute to the person or persons who will deliver Adolf Hitler alive, un wounded and un hurt some time this month into the custody of the League of Nations. The offer is good for the month of May only.

AN ALBERTA NEWSPAPER PROPERTY OF MARCH 15

The following was prophesied by the Athabasca Echo on March 15th last:

To the psalm "O God our help in ages past" the Social Credit gangsters raided the taxpayers' treasury to the tune of $2,000 each for the "work" of seven days' attendance at the house and voting yes to a lot of half-baked legislation drafted in despite of our Canadian constitution. If we give him another five-year term, he has announced his intention of taking over the police from the federal authority, when he will create his own "Gestapo" of terror for the province.

Of course, not all prophecies come true.

Les Carver had a close shave last week when his car struck a telephone post just west of Natal. He came through with a black eye and a cracked rib, but the car was badly damaged. Les was enroute from Calgary to Nelson.

BELLEVUE CELEBRATION TO BE SPONSORED BY UNITED CHURCH, MAY 24

As in several years past, the Bellevue United church will sponsor a big celebration on May 24th. We understand that a big feature of the celebration will be the election and crowning of the May Queen, for which six very well known and popular Bellevue high school girls have entered their names for the public to decide which is "most entitled to be crowned for 1940-41. The girls are: Betty Ritchie, Ross Bozzer, Stella Seifick, Helen McIsaac and Annie Schilling. Tickets are now on sale at 25 cents each, and each ticket sold carries ten votes for the candidate. In the past three or four years this contest has proven exceedingly interesting, and there is every reason to believe that the 1940 contest will be the keenest ever.

The proceeds of the celebration will go to the church improvement fund. There will be the regular program of outdoor sports, weather permitting. Miss Lily Padgett was elected "Queen of the May" in 1939.

ALBERTA SCHOLAR- SHIP COMPETITION

Under the auspices of the Provincial Institute of Technology and Art, in co-operation with the Department of Extension of the University of Alberta, the Banff School of Fine Arts will be conducted during the summer of 1940 as in previous summers. It has been gratifying to those responsible for its organization to realize the broad general interest aroused, as evidenced by the large annual attendances. This has resulted in the provision of a special building by the Banff school board, having as a major purpose the accommodation of this school, making Banff the permanent location, and assuring its growth and influence in the future.

To encourage those who desire instruction in the drawing and painting phase of art work, there is made available a limited number of scholarships, having a value of $20 each as payment of fees for tuition in the art course. There will be nine scholarships in all, one each for competition among those residing in that many defined districts of the province. Crows' Nest Pass, Macleod and Cardston is designated as District No. 1, the area being within townships 1 to 16 inclusive, west of range 22.

The competition is open to any person residing in the district. Any subject from landscape, still life or life, may be chosen for the picture submitted. Pencil, pen, charcoal, pastel, crayon, watercolor or oil may be used as a medium in making the picture. Only one picture by each person to be submitted, at least 8x12 inches in dimension. It is to be sent, prepaid, to the Provincial Institute of Technology and Art, Calgary, on or before June 15. The name and address of the artist shall be written plainly on the back of the picture, which will be returned after the pictures have been judged.

A statement from some reputable person within the district, such as teacher, minister, postmaster or merchant, to the effect that the picture is the sole work of the person signing it, and recently done, shall be written on the back of the picture and signed. Write for booklet describing program.

Those who see the war as a means of increasing their incomes, so that they may purchase more luxuries, have the wrong conception of Canadianism, declared Graham Towers at Windsor recently. "In the long run," he said, "citizens of this country will learn that it is in their best interests to do without certain extras that might seem attractive. If they practice this restraint now it will ease conditions of the war's aftermath."

C.G.I.T. ENTERTAINMENT

The girls of the Viel Group of the C.G.I.T. will stage an entertainment in the United church auditorium on the night of Friday, May 10th, for which they have been training for some time past.

The programme will include a short play entitled "Aro We Dressing."

The group will be in charge of Mrs. Jack Kerr, who succeeded Miss Knapman as leader. For the past four years entertainments of a high order have been successfully staged by the group, who feel that the presentation this time will outlive all previous efforts.

ANDERSON-SMITH

The marriage of Isabel Margaret Smith, second daughter of Mrs. M. Smith, of Calgary, to Mr. Norman Thomas Anderson, son of Mr. Anderson and the late Mr. John Anderson, of Blaimore, was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. McKay on April 26th, at 8 p.m., Rev. E. B. Arrol officiating. The happy couple are honeymooning in Calgary and Edmonton, and upon their return will take up residence on Stuart Street.

E. O. DUKE, M. L. A. TO RESIDE PINCHER CREEK

Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Duke were honored at a farewell gathering in the parish hall at Cannore on Friday evening by members of St. Michael's Anglican church.

Mr. Duke, who was elected to the Alberta legislature in the Pincher Creek-Crows Nest riding, will, along with his family, take up residence in Pincher Creek in the near future.

FLYING TRAINING SCHOOL COMES TO MACLEOD

According to word from Ottawa, provision has been made for the establishment of a service flying training school at Macleod, for training of pilots under the British commonwealth air-training plan. Relief fields for the school will be created at Granum and Pearce.

BARGAIN RAIL FARES EAST ARE ANNOUNCED

From the Lakehead and Western Canada across to the Pacific coast bargain fares to Eastern Canada will go into effect over the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National lines, beginning May 18th, with a return limit of 45 days.

These fares will be on sale from all western stations between May 18 and 29, which gives wide leeway for those who plan spring holiday or business trips to the east, according to announcement by J. A. Brass, secretary Canadian Passenger Association.

These fares are good for either coach, tourist or standard travel class, and passengers holding standard class tickets via Canadian lines may be routed via the Great Lakes on the usual payment for meals and sleeping accommodation aboard ship.

Half fares are arranged for children and stop-overs will be allowed. Similar fares from Eastern to Western Canada hold the same time limit during the same period of sale.

The Crows' Nest Lake Dance Pavilion will open for the season with a grand dance on Saturday night, May 4th. The Arcadians will supply the music. We understand that dances will be staged every Saturday night during the summer months.

The savings of a woman were recently dug up near Kootenay Flats by herself with a shovel. She unearthed a tobacco can containing $23. The joke of it is that she was her own goat. She had buried the can there in 1931, and had never been able to recall the spot again. All the bills were said to be o.k.

IMPERIAL THREE-STAR ENTERTAINERS' SHOW

Following is what the Creston Review has to say of the big dynamic show, which is to be staged in Blaimore on the night of May 14th:

"What a swell show!" You could hear it on every tongue in Creston, Wednesday afternoon and evening. It seems to be a human trait to want to see champions act—and Creston had that opportunity, when the Imperial Three-Star entertainers presented a two-hour vaudeville show before capacity crowds in the school auditorium Wednesday afternoon, and at the Grand theatre Wednesday night. The show was under the auspices of the district's Imperial Oil dealers and agents.

The school students and adults of the Valley took to its heart this grand aggregation in one of the most overwhelming receptions ever accorded a stage performance here. The huge audiences gave rapt attention and greeted each number with thunderous applause. After each act there was at least three curtain calls and thrice the applause was such as to demand encores in the programme.

"DRIVE SAFELY"

In a recent "drive safely" campaign, an American minister made the following contribution. He suggested the following hymns should be sung by speedsters at the different speeds:

At 25 miles per hour, "I'm but a Stranger here, Heaven is my home."
At 45 miles per hour, "Nearer my God to Thee."
At 55 miles per hour, "I'm nearing the Port and will soon be Home."
At 65 miles per hour, "When the Roll is called up Yonder, I'll be There."
At 75 miles per hour, "Lord I'm coming Home."

WHAT FOR?

Announcement is made from Edmonton that "A resident of the Province may angle in waters of the province that are not frequented by trout, grayling or Rocky Mountain whitefish, without a permit." Boy, that's efficiency!

Vocational Guidance

Vocational guidance is a topic which has come very much to the fore recently. At meetings of home and school clubs, school boards, service clubs and other organizations interested in present day trends of education and the development of the child to fit him or her for a vocation in life, one hears the question of directing the child's efforts in the path which will make him or her most useful and valuable, not only to himself or herself but to society generally after school days are over.

If a system of vocational guidance is to be adopted in conjunction with the educational system of the country two major factors are involved, the child and society. It is essential that the child's latent interests and talents be discovered and noted as early as possible and that they be developed to the maximum extent which the scholastic system will permit. This is for the benefit of the child. For the benefit of society it is likewise necessary that a life vocation be selected for the child which will enable him or her to place his or her talents and interests at the disposal of industry, commerce or the professions to the best advantage.

The purpose of vocational guidance is to bring these two essentials together in the mutual interest of the child and society. If this can be achieved there will be fewer square pegs in round holes in the industrial, commercial and professional life of the country; in fact, no misfits at all if the plan operates 100 per cent. successfully.

It is now generally conceded, not only by educational authorities, but by parents and all who have given any thought to the subject, that to the young man and the young woman embarking on life's great adventure, the pursuit of a vocation, will not only be happiest but will make the greatest success if life's work is patterned on youth's most ardent ambitions and, therefore, that for which he or she is best fitted by temperament, talent and training. It will take drudgery out of work and bring joy into life. Such a consummation is not only of maximum benefit to the young man or woman but to society, for it is a sine qua non that society will reap the greatest return from the efforts of those who labor, no matter in what sphere or at what stage of progress.

Co-operation Essential

And how is this desirable end to be brought about? The co-operation of the parents, the teachers and all educational authorities must be sought and secured. Protagonists of vocational guidance propose that throughout the entire school life a chart of the child's progress be kept. That chart will note his success or otherwise in the various subjects of the public school curriculum. It will be more, however, than a bare statistical record of marks. It will indicate the child's temperament in work and play. It will record his likes and his dislikes and his attitude towards the various activities in which he engages.

If this record is conscientiously kept by an observant teacher by the time grade 8 has been reached, it will be possible then to determine the direction in which he should head, first towards further studies in the secondary schools and more remotely, at that stage, towards a choice of life work. Based on the information which the chart reveals, the studies to be taken up in the high school will be selected by the parents and the child in consultation with the vocational guidance officer, who must necessarily have wide experience and knowledge not only of child psychology, but also of the business world and must be able to discern future trends in industry, commerce and the professions. There will be nothing compulsory about it, but the information and advice available to the parents and the child should be of inestimable value to all concerned.

Sacrifices Involved

And by the time the high school course is completed—be it academic, commercial or technical, it will be possible to determine with accuracy with the assistance of the charts and of the guidance officer whether the student is best fitted to immediately take his place in commerce or industry or to go on to university, and if the latter, what university should be attended and what courses should be pursued. For at that stage it should be definitely known, if ever, what particular niche in the business life of the country the student is best adapted for in his own future success and happiness and in the best interests of society at large.

It has already been stated that such a measure, to be successful, requires the co-operation of the parents. If the best interests of the student and of society are to be considered it will often enough mean self-sacrifice on the part of the parents. Parents who have decided that they want their son to be a doctor or lawyer and wear a white collar will be disappointed when presented with irrefutable evidence that he would be almost a total loss in either of these professions but would make a first class blacksmith or mechanic or an excellent farmer, or vice versa.

It should not be forgotten, however, that the welfare and happiness of the student throughout life must be the first consideration. Parents may find it difficult to give up their aspirations for their offspring, but the disappointment would be none the less keen if the youth, following the behest of the parents, made a miserable failure of his vocation in life. A good blacksmith or machinist is infinitely to be preferred to an indifferent barber or a mediocre doctor; and again, vice versa.

Housing Survey

A survey of housing in Canada will be made in connection with the 1941 census, according to plans already prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics but subject to final approval by the government.

A pygmy hippopotamus full-grown weighs about 450 pounds, in contrast with an ordinary hippo which may weigh 5,000 or 6,000 pounds.

It is not yet known where sprats, a fish found in British waters between November and February, go during the rest of the year.

Salt is the mineral most apt to be lacking in feed given to farm animals.

Where Canada Leads

The rise to prominence of Canada as one of the world's great producers of spring wheat is due in no small measure to the success of the efforts of plant breeders in developing varieties capable of meeting successfully the challenge of nature. Indeed, it is freely admitted that in no country has the work of the scientific breeder of plants contributed more directly and substantially to national prosperity than it has in Canada—Dr. L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist.

Paying For The War

Governor Of Bank Of Canada Says Canadians Must Be Prepared For Sacrifices

Graham F. Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, told Canadians their sacrifices are still to come, and they must spend their money to buy shells, guns, ships and airplanes rather than for private purposes.

Addressing the Montreal Canadian Club, Mr. Towers said increased incomes from war activity "must be returned to the state in the form of taxation or subscription to war loans." In the case of many, a larger percentage of the pre-war income would have to be contributed or lent.

Canadians must provide Canadian dollars to the United Kingdom to enable the mother country to buy supplies from Canada, and they must save enough to repatriate Canadian securities now owned in the United Kingdom.

He said this would be the reply to the claim of the totalitarian states that democracies "can't take it—in other words, pull in their belts."

"The people in this country are going to have to think twice before they make expenditures that are not essential. They are going to have to ask themselves, 'Can I do without this article or this service—this cruise or this imported luxury?'"

"We shall only be asked to give up some material things—not our liberty of thought and action."

The real cost of the war, Mr. Towers said, must be met out of current production. "There are no countries from whom we can borrow. We have to stand on our own feet."

He said that in operating exchange control every effort had been made to pay fair so far as non-residents are concerned. "In effect, what we have done is to ask the non-resident to leave his capital in this country, so that we may avoid curtailment of the resources which are needed for the conduct of the war," he said.

Mr. Towers said that those connected with the control board do not underestimate the inconveniences arising from control, and he expressed appreciation for co-operation which has been shown in this country—and in the neighboring country—as well.

"We can assist by repatriation of Canadian securities now owned by residents of the United Kingdom," he continued. "A start has been made on this programme, the most important single transfer so far being the redemption of the Dominion government 3½ per cent loan which was outstanding in the London market in the amount of approximately £20,500,000."

"We are producing materials and supplies which are not being exchanged for other materials and supplies for the use of our people. Our production is, in fact, being exchanged for pieces of paper—valuable pieces of paper representing debts we had incurred in past years, or shares of our corporations."

SELECTED RECIPES

FISH LOAF

- 1½ cups scaled milk
- 25 Christie's Premium Soda Crackers, crushed fine
- 4 tablespoons melted butter
- 1 teaspoon minced parsley
- Grated rind of ½ lemon
- Salt and pepper
- 3 cups flaked cooked fish
- 2 eggs
- Tomato sauce

Pour milk over 1½ cups crumbled crackers, add butter, flavouring and seasonings. Mix with fish and beaten eggs. Sprinkle a well greased loaf pan with remaining cracker crumbs. Pack in fish mixture and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. Turn out on a platter. Serve with tomato sauce. Six portions.

ORANGE CORN FLAKE CHEWS

- 1½ cups condensed milk
 - 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
 - 1 tablespoon orange juice
 - 3½ cups Kellogg's Corn Flakes
 - 1½ cups coconut
 - ¼ teaspoon salt
- Combine milk, orange rind, orange juice and Corn Flakes which have been crushed into a thick paste. Add coconut and salt. Allow to stand about three minutes. Drop by teaspoonfuls on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 15 minutes. Remove at once from baking sheet. Yield: 3½ dozen cookies (1½ inches in diameter).

Agricultural Research

The organizations in Canada contributing to agricultural research are the Dominion Department of Agriculture and the National Research Council of the Dominion Government, the Ontario Research Foundation, the Provincial Departments of Agriculture, agricultural colleges, university laboratories, research laboratories of commercial companies, and individual scientific investigators.

Presents Real Problem

University Students Have To Provide Large Proportion Of Expenses

"The prospect of equality in education opportunity for persons of equal ability—the generally-accepted ideal of democracy—becomes more and more remote and university administrators concerned with the intellectual and cultural advancement of the country, grow increasingly apprehensive," the Dominion Bureau of Statistics says in its annual review of revenues of Canadian colleges and universities.

Students have been called upon to provide an increased proportion of the money required to operate universities while other sources of revenue—provincial grants, interest and endowments—have declined relatively, at approximately equal rates, the review, which covers the years from 1921 to 1939, says.

"This is a trend which, unaccompanied by any substantial increase in funds available for student aid, tends to make financial means, rather than intellectual ability, the basic qualification for a university education in Canada."

Student fees as contributing to total revenue of universities and colleges increased from 20.1 per cent. in 1921 to 32.7 in 1939. Government grants decreased from 49.8 to 42.2, endowments from 16.4 to 13.2 and other miscellaneous revenue from 13.7 to 11.9.

Discovered By Accident

Chalk Mine In France May Prove To Be Valuable

Colonel P. T. Eatheron, the explorer who organized the Houston-Mount Everest flight six years ago, and whose life has been packed with adventure since serving in Kitchen-er's fighting scouts in the South Africa War, has left London for the South of France. A writer in the London Daily Sketch tells the story behind this journey. A short while ago Colonel Eatheron was staying with a French baroness at her chateau near Perpignan, when he went out rabbit shooting. A keeper who accompanied him, tripped over some rough ground while climbing the side of a hill. It proved to be the opening to an overgrown cave. The colonel became interested, and decided to explore. He discovered the existence of a mine developed in Napoleonic days, but closed ever since. The mine ran under two hills, and long galleries were in perfect working condition. The baroness suggested that Colonel Eatheron should have an analysis made of the contents of the mine. It proved to be 99 per cent. pure calcium carbonate. Engineers have now been sent both from Paris and from London, and the chalk mine is expected to prove a valuable discovery. Colonel Eatheron has gone to help in the work.

Has Been Kept Busy

Work Of Britain's Chief Passport Officer Increased By War

J. W. Stafford, the chief passport officer, in Queen Anne's Gate Buildings, London, has been one of the busiest men in England since the outbreak of war. For several months he even slept in a camp bed in the building. The reason for this is that the business of granting exit permits, without which no single person may leave Britain's shores in wartime, was added to his normal work, says the London Daily Sketch. It was in 1915 that Mr. Stafford, then a young Foreign Office official, was sent to the passport office. He found a little shed rigged up in the courtyard of the Foreign Office, where 13 officials were "wrestling" with the problem of making passports compulsory. Until the last war you could travel pretty well all around Europe without any papers. Mr. Stafford now has a staff of 250. The modern building in Westminster is the scene of great activity and one hears almost every language in the world spoken in its wide corridors. Until recent, English people could get permission to go abroad only if they had an urgent reason.

Had Curious Hobby

Lord Fairhaven Owns Hundreds Of Pictures Of Windsor Castle

Lord Fairhaven, who has taken on the job of linking up the activities of the Red Cross in Great Britain, used to have a curious hobby. This was the collecting of pictures of Windsor Castle. His possessions hundreds of them—paintings, drawings, etchings, and woodcuts, some of them going back for centuries. Another of his treasures is a fine modern tapestry which he commissioned from a firm of weavers in Cambridge, and which is housed at Anglesey Abbey, his Cambridgehire seat. It contains a number of characteristic views of the county. Lord Fairhaven, who is a bachelor of 44, inherited a large fortune from his father, Urban Broughton, who gave him the name of Lord Fairhaven. His mother gave Runnymede to the nation.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION

Ottawa, April 22nd, 1940.
To the Editor, The Enterprise,
Blaimore, Alberta.

Dear Sir: On behalf of the Directors of Canadian Legion War Services, we desire to take this opportunity to express our deep gratitude for the assistance rendered by your newspaper during the recent Legion War Services Campaign.

The great success which the campaign achieved can be attributed in no small measure to the generous publicity which was accorded by the Press generally throughout Canada and it would be difficult to exaggerate the tremendous help which the newspapers have been in publicizing the purposes of the campaign in their news columns. Nor must we forget the favorable editorial comments which were such an important factor in making the objectives of the appeal known to the general public.

For all this, the Directors of Canadian Legion War Services, Incorporated, are very much indebted to you, and on their behalf we have much pleasure in conveying our warmest thanks for your invaluable assistance during the period of the national drive for funds for war purposes.

With every good wish, we are,

Yours very sincerely,
Canadian Legion War Services, Inc.
J. A. Gunn, President.
J. R. Bowler, Hon. Secretary.

BLASTING CAP WARNING

Renewed efforts are being made this spring, in a country-wide campaign, to protect children from the dangers of playing with blasting caps. Statistics gathered by the explosives division of the Department of Mines and Resources at Ottawa reveal that these accidents to children begin to increase in early spring and continue to a high point in July and August. Statistics gathered over the past 17 years disclose that 25 children were killed and 558 injured—the majority of them under 12 years of age—as a result of playing with carelessly discarded caps. Both the government and manufacturers of commercial explosives, such as dynamite and blasting powder, have carried on from year to year a relentless campaign to parents, teachers and children, warning of the dangers of playing or tampering with blasting caps found lying about in the vicinity of recent blasting operations. Children should be warned not to touch one of these objects and should be told to notify immediately an officer of the law or a responsible adult so that the danger may be removed.

Jerry was asked: "Now, if you had the opportunity, would you destroy Hitler?"

Jerry: "Now! Why waste the lead?"

Brown: "You are certainly a good luncheon speaker. How do you do it?"

McPhail: "Oh, it's easy. I just prepare a clever beginning and a brilliant ending, and then see to it that nothing gets in between."

Mother: "Clara, what are you doing with all that jam on your lips? What would you say if you saw me looking like that?"

Clara: "I'd say you were going to a dance, mother."

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(T. B. Windsor)

Edmonton, April 28.—While British Columbia faced a crisis at the beginning of this week as a result of the shortage of gasoline because of government regulation, Alberta awaited some word of the findings of the royal commission which two weeks ago presented its report to the Alberta government.

As this week opened, there was no indication from the attorney general, Hon. William Aberhart, as to the contents of the report. The secrecy still surrounding the document so long after it had been handed to the government by Mr. Justice A. A. McGillivray and Major Lipsett, the two commissioners, gave rise to assumptions that the delay in its publication must be due to political reasons of some kind. But it remained unknown definitely whether that delay was due to any indication that the royal commission report, the result of a thorough 14-month study of the entire petroleum industry in Alberta, would wipe out any contention of too-profitable operations by the producing and distributing companies.

In the meantime, British Columbia was suffering from an acute shortage of gasoline. All motorists and all industry, from farming to heavy manufacturing, felt the effect of the provincial government's ruling that gasoline should be sold at a price decrease of three cents wholesale. That regulation meant that producing and distributing companies should sell below cost, and since much business could not possibly be carried on, it resulted in a shut-down of all the principal gasoline companies.

By expending their complete resources, the companies possibly would have been able to supply consumers for a few days, but then their supplies would have been exhausted and the financial result would have meant a complete lack of reserve sources, it was explained. Therefore, the only practical recourse, when the government in power cut prices arbitrarily without considering the result, was to stop distributing the fuel.

The Alberta government long ago indicated similar tactics. Therefore, Alberta gasoline consumers and all those who depend upon gasoline indirectly, which includes practically everyone in the province, is awaiting anxiously to know the present view of the government. Since, presumably, that view depends on the substance of the McGillivray commission report, the substance of the report should be issued at once, observers said at the week end.

Three questions were outstanding. First, was the query: Can Alberta supply more of Canada's petroleum requirements. It was plain that the province could produce more oil and gasoline only if the companies who are now producing are not restricted in that production. Then there was the question whether more capital could be attracted to Alberta's oil industry, in order to produce more oil and gasoline and, at the same time, enlarge tax rolls, increase employment and add to provincial wealth. Unless the provincial government itself could put cash into the producing fields to operate them, it must depend on private capital, and private capital must not be discouraged, it was emphasized.

The most vital question to all Canada, and to the whole empire, and to the cause of the Allies against the Germans, was whether aviation gasoline, processed from Turner Valley crude oil, is going to be continued to be produced, without provincial government interference, in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements of the commonwealth air training scheme.

The answers to all these questions lay in the McGillivray commission report and in the Aberhart government's decisions on that report, it was observed. Therefore, commentators said, the report should be issued as speedily as possible, particularly since the government issued a statement last week declaring it already possessed all the legislative power it needed to control prices.

Fresh light on the Social Credit situation in Alberta came during the past week when the caucus of federal members selected J. H. Blackmore as house leader in the Ottawa parliament, thus dropping Hon. W. D. Herridge, founder of the New Democracy party, but laying claim to his party.

A spokesman for the federal Social Credit members stated "Social Credit and New Democracy are just names, the philosophy is the same." Premier Aberhart stated Saturday, "A Social Credit order and New Democracy are co-related terms."

FOOLING FISH

More than a thousand different kinds of artificial flies are available to anglers, writes Vic Baker in the current issue of the C-I-L-Oval, a magazine of industrial chemistry. Since fly fishing was first mentioned 450 years ago, in the famous Book of St. Albans, written by Wynkyn de Worde, who followed Caxton as printer in Westminster, says the article, human ingenuity has never let down in its efforts to devise new methods of fooling the fish. Among the more recent innovations contributing to the anglers' success are fishing leaders made from nylon, chemistry's new wonder material. They are practically invisible in water.

A Glasgow merchant, famous in his way, came into his office one morning and found a young clerk writing a letter in rather a flourishing hand. "My man," he observed, "dinna mak' the tails o' yer g's and y's me lang, I want the ink tale and the quarter oot!"

FREE FISHING FOR MOTORISTS

A change has been made in the regulations respecting fishing permits in the national parks of Canada, but the amended regulations are continuing to disappoint sportsmen who have been agitating for months for a restoration of free fishing privileges in the parks.

The amended regulations state that a free fishing permit will be granted to the family of a motorist who takes out a temporary license to operate a motor vehicle in the parks. The fee for all other anglers shall be $2.50 a season. This means that a tourist entering the park on the railway or in a car other than his must pay the fee. The provision for family permits extends only to "the members of the licensee's family depending on him for support."

The Alberta Fish and Game Association, it is said, will continue protest.

NEW ZEALAND

BANK'S CONTRIBUTION

The recent offer of the New Zealand Bank to lend $1,000,000 free of interest to its government for war purposes has been gratefully accepted by the New Zealand government. The loan is for the duration of the war and six months after. Commenting on this very generous offer, Mr. Fraser, deputy prime minister of New Zealand, said that although this was the most spectacular offer of assistance received by the government, it was only one of many.

FROM H. M. CUSTOMS TO H. M. NAVY

My name it is Cluny, they call me, "Cap Blandford," I'll sail in the Navy till Hitler's done brown; And then I'll have Dolly or Biddy or Polly, Or some other dame when I'm back to town.

But we'll rant and we'll roar like true Newfoundlanders, We'll rant and we'll roar on deck and below; 'Till Hitler is sunk just as deep as 'The Sunkers,' And thro' Skagerrak to the Baltic we go.

I'm a seal killer's son who leaves H. M. Customs, To His Majesty's Navy I transfer for work; For always on sea, when the Empire was calling, Newfoundlanders turned out and never did shift.

And they'd rant and they'd roar like true Newfoundlanders, They'd rant and they'd roar on deck and below; But on enemy craft they could always put prize crews, For they'd launch a boat, tho' like hell it should blow.

Ah, our fathers and uncles, and our bigger brothers, Went over the sea in fourteen fourteen; And what they didn't finish we'll sure sew up this time, And Hitler the Scuttler no more will be seen.

Oh, we'll rant and we'll roar like true Newfoundlanders, We'll rant and we'll roar on deck and below; But when the King says I want men for my Navy, We will answer "Aye, aye, sir, we're rarin' to go!"

And when signing peace treaties let the Colonies tell them We don't want any treaty like that of Versailles; For that was too easy, 'spite Huns' propaganda, For when signing that treaty we were slow as the snails.

So, we'll rant and we'll roar like true Newfoundlanders— Don't listen to cranks from the West or the East. In making a peace to stop was please remember, You can never depend on a bloodstained beast.

For when we were boys we sure do remember, How at each German banquet the toast was "Der Tag;" And if you don't know it, this was the translation, To the Day when the Huns have the world in the bag.

So, we'll rant and we'll roar like true Newfoundlanders, It was a mistake to trade Heilgoland; For now 'tis a wango'-nest of mine-laying pirates, Take it back and just fill it with men of our brand.

And we'll live there and fish there like true Newfoundlanders, And if some day again the Germans show blow; You won't have the minefields against you you now have, And right thro' the Kiel to the Baltic we'll go.

Now, we'll rant and we'll roar like true Newfoundlanders, Tho' Goebels may goggle and Goering may gore; Tho' Hitler should rave, till says Hies: "What a mess, sir!" We would treat each of them just like a rat from a sewer.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

At the years go by, all too rapidly for many of us, thoughts of happenings and scenes of younger days are peculiarly attractive.

The Howard Smith Paper Mills Limited calendar for the next twelve months harks back to Canada's past and strikes a new note with a half dozen of old (and somewhat naive) engravings and lithographs of the Canada that was. The theme was suggested by the sight of the magnificent collection of Canadiana housed in the Canada Steamship Lines' lovely Manor Richelieu.

The task of selecting the six subjects (each page of the calendar being for two months) from the two thousand prints and paintings which line the walls and rooms was not an easy one, and whilst the prints reproduced may not be the most valuable of the collection, they picture Canada a century ago.

The Howard Smith calendars for some years past have featured fine arts, nature, history and modern Canadian scenes. We thank them for one of their latest calendars just received.

TURKISH SHIPYARDS

Britain's ally, Turkey, has entrusted to a British engineering firm a $2,000,000 contract which will make Istanbul the most important shipping centre in the Eastern Mediterranean and Black seas.

New shipyards for building and repairing will be erected at the Golden Horn, historic strategic bottle-neck providing the only outlet from the Black Sea to the oceans of the world.

Turkey's decision to build her own ships instead of buying or ordering them to be built abroad will be a severe blow to the German drive for trade in the Balkans. In recent years Turkey has ordered many vessels from German shipyards—one order alone was for 14 ships—and the new scheme will not only make her practically independent of other powers for shipbuilding, but it is also possible that some Eastern European states, such as Greece and Yugoslavia, will place orders with Turkey.

Turkey's expansion will completely overshadow her two Black Sea competitors, the Russian shipyards at Odessa and the Rumanian facilities at Constanza, and will give her the maritime domination of this important area both for repairing merchantmen or warships of practically any size, and for building new tonnage.

The yearly traffic passing the Golden Horn into the Black Sea averages 14,000,000 tons of shipping, or about 15,000 vessels, consisting chiefly of ships flying the flags of Greece, Turkey, Britain, Italy, Rumania, Russia, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Scandinavia. All these countries, including Britain, will find the facilities a great boon.

IN DEFENCE OF BACHELORS

"Newfoundlander" writes to the Family Herald and Weekly Star as follows: "I cannot agree with Mrs. Alice McGregor, whose letter appeared in your issue of March 27th, with reference to bachelors not being entitled for election to parliament. If you were to ask any Newfoundlander, over 40, who was their greatest statesman, he would immediately reply the late Sir Robert Bond. Sir Robert was a bachelor, but he was without doubt an outstanding man. If Newfoundland had had such men as Sir Robert Bond for prime ministers since he retired, we would not be in such a mess as we are today, humiliated to the status of a second-class crown colony."

A ROBIN'S MESSAGE

I saw a robin one early morn.
He looked so lonesome and so forlorn;
But his stout little heart was bursting
With song,
Though the day was drear and the wind was strong.

He was doing his very best to please,
And I was weary and ill at ease;
He seemed to say: "Don't look so drear!"
For Spring is here, Come! Be of good cheer!"

So straightaway within me a song was born,
As I looked at the robin so lone and forlorn;
And I said: "My friend, I'm going to try
To be of good cheer, though dark be the sky."

When days are dreary and nights are long,
To be like you with a heart full of song.
Then he went his way quite jaunty
and perk,
So happy and pleased with his morn-ing's work.

Let's copy the robin when things go wrong,
And wend our way with a smile and a song;
To cheer someone with a load of care,
And spread a little sunshine everywhere.

For a smile and a word go a very long way,
Toward chasing a load of care away;
And we'll find a welcome wherever we go.

For the happiness we bring, and the radiance we show.

THE PASS EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO

(The Blaimore Enterprise, 1922)

May 11.—Walter, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Thibodeau, met death by falling into a tub of boiling water.

J. E. Gilles and D. G. Macdonald had just entered into partnership in law.

Picariello asked the town council for ten years tax exemption on a business block and service garage he proposed to erect just west of his Albert's hotel building, which he claimed would benefit Alberta, benefit Blaimore, benefit Canada, benefit North America and benefit Picariello.

Spring operations at the McLaren sawmill commenced this week.

The C.P.R. were installing a new trans-Canada all-sleeping-car train to make from Toronto to Fort William in 25 hours, to Winnipeg 37 hours, to Calgary 61 hours and to Vancouver 88 hours.

A. H. Knight, well known former Cowley merchant, died in Calgary on Monday.

Rev. Thomas Hart had been called to succeed Rev. Harry Peters as pastor of the Bellevue Methodist church.

Rev. J. Phillips-Jones, pastor of Knox Presbyterian church, Leith bridge, conducted anniversary services at Coleman Institutional church on Sunday morning and evening last.

Lindsay Carter, Wilfrid Dutil and Orland Joyce, were installing a radio-telephone, mostly of their own manufacture.

At the annual meeting of the Pass Bootleggers' Association this week, the chaplain delivered the following prayer: "O lord, open now our lips that our mouths may speak forth some words."

For the privileges we have enjoyed during the year make us truly thankful, and may the government and police and legal men feel similarly grateful for the benefits accruing to them through our illegal activities. Strengthen our spirits, and may our friends never be found wanting.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Snyder are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son in St. Vincent's hospital at Fincher Creek on April 29th.

Both babe and mother are doing well. Miss Jennie Lemire was visiting relatives and friends in Cranbrook the early part of the week.

Mrs. Harold Dunn, of the Cowley airport, is a patient in St. Vincent's hospital at Fincher Creek. Friends will be glad to learn that she is improving.

Early garden vegetables are being planted here now, and some of the farmers have been out in the land and doing a bit of seeding this week.

Miss Nellie McWilliam was called to Calgary the early part of the week, owing to illness of her mother. Word has been received that she will return Friday, bringing her mother with her.

During Miss McWilliam's absence, Mrs. Evans, of Blaimore, acted as substitute teacher of the senior room of the Cowley school.

We understand that Andrew Kerr has sold his ranch, two and a half miles west of Cowley, to a Coleman party. The new owner is getting a crop of grain on the land.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Easterbrook and family, after residing at Vancouver for some twelve years, have returned to take up residence on the old Easterbrook ranch in joint partnership with Cyril Easterbrook.

The Ladies' Aid of the United church was entertained by Mrs. Edward Percival at her home on Thursday afternoon. Thirteen ladies were in attendance. Arrangements were made to have some work done on the church yard. The next meeting of the order will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Day, senior, on Thursday, June 6th.

Toronto Student 22 Years Old Has Learned Fourteen

In the last four years, 22-year-old Ronald J. Williams, University of Toronto student, has learned 14 languages and several dialects. Recently it was announced he was first undergraduate in North America to be awarded the $1,000 Thayer Fellowship in the American School of Oriental Research, at Jerusalem. Only two other Toronto men have won the award, and all recipients before Williams have held Ph.D. degrees. Williams' application was accepted to the exclusion of scores of others from all parts of the U.S. and Canada. Williams is now in his fourth year of the Oriental languages course at the university. He began studying languages in his last year at Jarvis Collegiate. His work in Jerusalem, he declared, would include a great deal of research and archaeological work.

More Propaganda

Writer Nails Lies Circulated About Red Cross Salaries

Probably, as pro-German propaganda is keeping right on buying itself in trying to poison the minds of stupid people, it will be necessary to keep right on administering anti-dotes. But it gets a little boring to have to refer, every few days, to some new lie that is being circulated about the Red Cross, or some equally upright body.

One of the latest pieces of enemy propaganda to come under our notice is the tale that the head of the Canadian Red Cross receives a $15,000 salary, while his assistant garners in $11,000. Unfortunately, as we have said before, it is not the regular German agents, paid or unpaid, who circulate lies of this type. They are passed round by the sort of person who loves a bit of malicious gossip and by the mean-hearted who make what they say is the misuse of funds by the Red Cross the excuse for withholding contributions.

For the help of those who, everywhere, are striving valiantly to defeat the enemy and those who do not realize how they aid the enemy by spreading unfounded rumors, we should like to quote the words of Dr. W. S. Caldwell, assistant director of the Red Cross. He refers to those who wish to know the facts re salaries to pages 15 and 16 of the annual report (which we have in our hands), and goes on to say: "It is entirely untrue that the annual salaries of the director and his assistant are $15,000 and $11,000 respectively. The total salaries of all persons engaged in administrative and fund-raising, secretaries, etc., amount to less than the figure mentioned for the director or his assistant."

"Equally unfounded," continues Dr. Caldwell, "is the claim that Red Cross comforts are being sold. Of the $38,000,000 contributed to the Red Cross by the Canadian people for the benefit of our forces in the last war; and of the thousands of garments already distributed in the present conflict, not one red cent has ever been received by the Red Cross. Anything which the Red Cross does for the comfort or welfare of our troops is a freewill offering from the people of Canada."—Bride Broder in Toronto Globe and Mail.

Gardening

Most Common Mistake

Most common mistake of new gardeners is crowding things too close together. In planning layouts it is essential to know the height and width of the flower or shrub or tree to be kept in mind and sufficient space be allowed for full growth. With newly set out permanent shrubbery, space between may be filled in temporarily with annuals until full room is required and with a slow growing tree like the maple or elm, shrubbery may be grown between for eight or ten years. But when the time comes for full room being needed, then it should be available and one must harden his heart, take an axe and thin. Crowded flowers, vegetables, shrubs or trees, soon become weak and spindly.

Informality Best

The informal flower garden is much to be preferred to the average planting. At the same time this does not mean just throwing in plants or seeds. Generally the best plan is to have the larger flowers towards the rear or centre of the bed so that little things like geraniums, alyssum, dwarf phlox and similar kinds will not be hidden. Where the bed is to be mowed, it is also to have late, medium and early flowers evenly balanced to insure something always in bloom.

Faiths Should Win

Winding paths are always more intriguing than plain, straight ones, but the beginner is advised against too many twists. One turn is about all the average city garden can afford. Moreover, professional landscape gardeners point out that there should never be a curve without some definite reason, such as a corner of building or fence, or a tree or shrubbery. But of course it is always permissible to make a reason for a curve by planting something in it.

Summer Gardens

Where one has a summer cottage that will not be visited until June, the usual practice is to start practically all the garden in flat boxes at home. Later these are taken well grown out to the garden by the lake. Such things as lettuce, carrots, beet, onions, even corn, can all be started in boxes or pots and moved very carefully. It is a good idea to start in individual berry or special cardboard box and simply remove box when planting.

A Double Scoop

A front page editorial notice in a country newspaper in Iowa claimed a double "scoop" last month. It read as follows: We were the first journal in the state to announce, on the 11th instant, the news of the destruction in Des Moines, by fire, of the mammoth paint establishment of Jenkins and Brothers. We are now the first to inform our readers that the report was absolutely without foundation.

Floating Fortresses

Five Huge Warships Added To British Navy

Hector Bywater, regarded as one of the best-informed commentators on naval matters, writes in The News Chronicle that the Royal Navy is about to be reinforced with five of the world's "largest, most powerfully armed and most strongly protected battleships."

These five—the King George V, Prince of Wales, Duke of York, Jellicoe, Bessy—which were launched last year, "now are undergoing their trials," Mr. Bywater wrote.

"They are the largest battleships ever built by this country and are exceeded in size only by the Lion and Temeraire and two others not yet named which are still under construction, and will displace at least 40,000 tons," the commentator wrote.

These five floating fortresses mount 10 14-inch guns in two quadruple and one twin turrets, 16 5.5-inch guns and many lighter guns. Each will carry three aircraft, and 1,500 officers and men. They can sustain 30 knots.

Completion raises Britain's capital ship strength to 19, Mr. Bywater said, while at least four more are being built.

Denmark Trade Prohibited

Trading with Enemy Regulations apply to any area which is occupied by a Power, with which Canada is at war. At the present time Denmark is in German occupation and commercial, financial or other intercourse or dealings with persons or concerns in Denmark are prohibited. This does not apply to Iceland or to the Danish dependencies of Greenland and the Faroe Islands.

I Read---And Write---For You

By JOHN C. KIRKWOOD

The president of a motor car company once told me that motor car engineers are "always three years ahead of the cars put on sale each year. Cars just can't catch up on engineers. Every engineer knows that the 1940 car has shortcomings; just what are the engineers trying to do to make cars better, or to make motoring cheaper? One answer to this question is: to make cars which will use all the energy contained in the gasoline which they use. It is known that the present motor fuel contains far more energy per gallon than engines are now able to get from it. So the problem of both chemists and engineers is to provide a means of getting every cent's worth from each gallon of gasoline sold.

Then there is the problem of proper car heating, ventilating and cooling. Good progress has been made by several car makers in the latter two, but the heating problem is still unsolved.

Another problem is making a roomier and more comfortable car all the year around, inside our motor cars! That might be hard on California and Florida—and perhaps on Canada!

They tell me that medical doctors are among the poorest and dullest public speakers in all the world. They may be able to write entrancing books, but they have not learned to use their tongues and vocal organs in a way to make them good platform men. Moreover, they have not the layman's vocabulary. But in New York City they have found some doctors who know how to talk interestingly, usefully, and audibly to audiences made up of the

Destroying Moths

Methods To Be Used In Getting Rid Of These Pests

The upheaval of our houses in cleaning time, makes little yellow winged creatures come out from dark hiding places. We chase and kill them, but that is too late, as they have been spending the past few months as larvae, feeding on a best suit or a fine wool dress. We do want to get rid of them, however, or they will breed and raise another generation to eat holes in our belongings.

There are two ways to destroy them: by contact, and by suffocation. When we prepare the winter clothing for storage during warm weather, we must first hang it in the sunshine, and brush it thoroughly. We may then spray with an insecticide liquid, pockets, seams and all, and pack it in a sealed container; or we may pack it in a tightly closed receptacle with enough poison gas crystals to suffocate the invaders. Since moths do not smell, merely bad odor is not sufficient, there must be enough poison gas to kill them. Fortunately garments which are used frequently or dry-cleaned do not harbor moths. Dark and undisturbed places are favorite resorts for the pest.

Tapping Pine Trees

In Ontario the farmers tap the maple trees for the sap which makes maple syrup and sugar, and in the South the pine trees are tapped for the precious fluid that makes turpentine. The tapping process is much the same. The Southerner gashes the tree and attaches a tin so that the sap will run into it. It is all collected and then distilled.

common people. These wonderful men are giving a series of "Lectures for the Laidy." The aim of the series is to acquaint the public with the achievements of medical science and its aims. And the interesting thing is that doctors attend these lectures! We want equally good and lucid lectures in Canada for the laity. What doctors have we able to give them? Do you know of a single doctor who can make himself heard beyond the third row of his audience, who can talk the language of the man in the street, and who can be as interesting as a story-teller?

In Europe, along the Western Front, are 100,000 carrier pigeons. These birds might not win prizes for looks at pigeon exhibitions, but they are trained to deliver messages from the front to division headquarters when telephone or radio communication is impossible.

The life of one of these pigeons, bar accidents, is from 8 to 10 years. It is still a wonder how pigeons can find their way, without hesitation or searching, to the home they were born in, and back to the home they were taken to the home left.

They began using pigeons in the Franco-German war of 1870. Now they are using them for messages to pigeons-strapped to the bird's breast, and pictures are taken automatically as the bird flies on its course.

ISAIAH GIVES GOD'S INVITATION

Golden text: Seek ye the Lord while he may be found; call ye upon him while he is near. Isaiah 55:6.
Lesson: Isaiah 55.
Devotional reading: Matthew 11:28-30.

Explanations and Comments
God's Gracious Invitation, Isaiah 55:1-3. "Ho, every one that thirsteth," even one that is conscious of his spiritual needs, so runs the gracious invitation of God as Isaiah declares it: "come ye (to God), buy and eat, yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price." He who feels his need of spiritual blessings, for which wine and milk are metaphors, may freely receive. Samuel Rutherford speaks of this verse as setting before us "the poor man's market."

His heaven alone that is given away;
"Thy heaven alone that is given away;"

"Thy heaven alone that is given away;"
This whole chapter of Isaiah is remarkable for the large number of its figures of speech. Such figures speak a universal language, for they express facts of nature which have the same meaning for every heart. Therefore do we spend money for that which is not bread? And your labor (earnings, Revised Version) for that which satisfieth not? In Babylon the Israelites were working and spending, but gaining only material necessities and luxuries while their souls were starving. See John 6:27: "Hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good and your soul shall delight itself in fatness." "Fatness" is figuratively used for prosperity, well-being. "He that cometh to me shall never hunger," cried Jesus, "and he that believeth on me shall never thirst."

"Hearken ye, O ye that are weary, all ye that have a burden upon you: for I will give rest unto you." "First of all there has to be a discipline of the ear; there has to be a determined and resolute effort to listen to God" (J. H. Jowett).

All that is required on the part of Israel is hearing and coming and taking; less to this, and it will be pervaded by life, and it will be met with an everlasting covenant. The covenant usually made between two: here it is rather a promise on the part of God. Even the sure mercies promised to David: see Psalm 89:35.

TOT'S DRESS AND CAPE

By Anne Adams

"I just love my new outfit!" little sister will exclaim when you surprise her with this dainty dress and trim cape. Anne Adams' Pattern 4412 is so easy to stitch up, too. Health LEAGUE OF CANADA

present TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST

By Dr. J. W. S. McCulloch

HEALTH BOOKS

The Health League of Canada urged citizens of Canada to take full advantage of a fine series of health books recently published by the Federal Department of Pensions and National Health.

"The widest publicity should be given to these valuable booklets," declared Dr. Gordon Bates, General Director of the Health League, "Organizations of all kinds should write for the booklets and see that the contents are brought before their membership."

The booklets are written in simple, everyday language, each booklet dealing with a specific subject such as "Hay Fever and Asthma," "Typhoid Fever," and "Holiday Health."

Health experts were engaged by the Dominion Government to prepare the leaflets. They should be of great service to teachers of Canada, Dr. Bates said.

The series of booklets, which are free for the asking, would make up a fine layman's library on health education, according to Health League officials.

"Particularly in war-time should special care be given of the health of Canada," Dr. Bates said recently. "Canada is fighting a powerful enemy, and every resource at our command should be brought to bear in the fight. We will contribute more to the effort of the allies if we maintain and improve the health of our people."

A vast amount of information is available on health education and the prevention of disease, the League Director said. "It's a pity more people don't take advantage of these free publications," he said, urging citizens to write to the Federal Department of Health for copies of the new booklets.

Fish Hatcheries

More Than 34 Million Salmon And Trout Distributed

More than 34 million little salmon and trout were distributed in suitable waters in the Maritime Provinces and British Columbia by the Canadian Government during 1939. Most of these little fish had been carefully fed in hatchery ponds before liberation and all reached their new homes in a strong and vigorous condition.

The principal species liberated included 21,300,000 Atlantic salmon, 11,600,000 speckled trout, and more than one million sockeye salmon. Other species distributed in smaller numbers were Sebago salmon, Kamloops trout and rainbow trout. Most of the fish set free were in the fingerling stage, although some of them were yearlings and older, and the rainbow trout included adult fish up to four years old.

Cost Greatly Reduced

Illinois Physician Develops Cheap Method For X-Ray Pictures

By using an ordinary miniature camera and thirty-five millimeter film, an Illinois physician has developed a method of making X-ray photographs of patients at a cost of about ten cents a picture. This extremely low cost is achieved by eliminating the usual fourteen-by-seventeen-inch X-ray films. The person being examined stands in a small booth and the miniature camera, as focused on a fluorescent screen on which the X-ray tube throws the shadow of the patient—Popular Mechanics.

Inspector Elk

The cabman took the necessary risk and arrived without hurt at the gloomy entrance of police headquarters. Jim Carlton waved a brotherly greeting to the sergeant at the desk, took the stairs two at a time, and came to his own little room. As a rule, he was not particularly interested in his personal appearance, but now, glancing at the small mirror which decorated the upturned top of a washstand, he uttered a groan.

He was busy getting the grease from his face when the melancholy face of Inspector Elk appeared in the doorway.

"Going to a party?" he asked gloomily.

"No," said Jim through the latter: "I often wash."

Elk sniffed, seated himself on the edge of a hard chair, searched his pockets slowly and thoroughly.

"It's in the inside pocket of my jacket," spluttered Carlton. "Take one; I've counted 'em."

Elk sighed heavily as he took out the long leather case, and, selecting a cigar, lit it.

"Sergeants are not what they were when I was a boy," he said, gazing at the weed disparagingly. "For six pence you could get a real Havana. Over in New York everybody smokes cigars. But then, they pay the police a livin' wage; they can afford it."

Inspector Elk was not offended. "I've smoked some good cigars in my time," he said. "Over in the public prosecutor's office in Mr. Gordon's days—he was the fellow that smashed the Progs—and me, that is to say," he corrected himself carefully.

"The Progs? Oh, yes, I remember. Mr. Gordon had good cigars, did he?"

"Pretty good," said Elk cautiously. "I wouldn't say yours was worse, but it's not better." And then, without a change of voice: "Have you pinched Stratford Harlow?"

Nothing Criminal

Jim Carlton made a grimace of disgust.

"Tell me something I can pinch him for," he invited.

"He's worth £200,000,000 according to accounts," said Elk. "No man ever gets twenty million honest."

Jim Carlton turned a white, wet face to his companion.

"He inherited three from his father, two from one of his uncles, two from another. The Harlows have always been a rich family, and in the last decade they've graded down to maiden aunts. He had a bachelor uncle in America who left him $5,000,000."

Elk sighed and scratched his thin nose.

"He's in Ratusa, too," he said complacently.

"Of course he's in Ratusa!" scoffed

FOR WOMEN ONLY!

Jim. "Ellenbury hides him, but even if he didn't, there's nothing criminal in Ratusa. And supposing he was openly in it, that would be no offense."

"Oh!" said Elk, and by that "Oh!" indicated his tentative disagreement.

There was nothing further or underhand about the Ratusa syndicate. It was registered as a public company and had its office in Westbriar House, Old Broad Street, in the City of London, and its New York office on Wall Street. The Ratusa Syndicate published a balance sheet and employed a staff of ten clerks, three of whom gained further emoluments by acting as directors of the company, under the chairmanship of a retired colonel of infantry. The capital was a curiously small one, but the resources of the syndicate were enormous. When Ratusa cornered rubber in 28, checks amounting to $500,000 sterling passed outward through its banking accounts; in fact, every cent involved in that great transaction appeared in the books except the $50,000 that somebody paid to Lee Hertz and his two friends.

Suspicious

Lee arrived from New York on a Friday afternoon. On the Sunday morning the United International Rubber Company's stores went up in smoke. Nearly 18,000 tons of rubber was destroyed (in that well-organized conflagration, and rubber jumped 50 per cent. in 24 hours and 200 per cent. in a week, for the big reserves that kept the market steady had been wiped out in the twinkling of an eye, to the profit of the Ratusa Syndicate, Inc.

Said the New York headquarters to Scotland Yard:

"Lee Hertz, Jo Klein and Philip Serrett, well-known druggists believed to be in London stop See record NY 6514 mailed you October 7 1927 for description stop Possibility you may connect them United International fire."

By the time Scotland Yard located Lee he was in Paris in his well-known role of American gentleman seeking the night.

"It doesn't look right to me," said Elk, puffing luxuriously at the cigar. "Here's Ratusa buys rubber with not a ghost of a chance of its rising. And suddenly, hiff! A quarter of the price, and naturally prices and shares rise. Ratusa's been buying 'em for months. Did they know that the United was going west?"

"I thought it might have been an accident," said Jim, who had never thought anything of the night.

"Accident my grandmother's right foot!" said Elk, without heat. "The stores were lit up in three places—the salvage people located the petrol. A man smoking a cigarette in the street, and naturally prices and shares rise. Ratusa's been buying 'em for months. Did they know that the United was going west?"

"I thought it might have been an accident," said Jim, who had never thought anything of the night.

A man smoking a cigarette in the street, and naturally prices and shares rise. Ratusa's been buying 'em for months. Did they know that the United was going west?"

The telephone bell rang shrilly at that second, and Jim Carlton took up the instrument from the table.

"Somebody wants you, Inspector," said the exchange clerk.

There was a click, an interval of silence, and then a troubled voice asked:

"Can I speak to Mr. Carlton?"

"Yes, Miss Rivers."

"Oh, it's you, is it? There was a flattering relief in the voice. "I wonder if you would come to Pothrigg Mansions No. 63?"

"Is anything wrong?" he asked quickly.

"I don't know, but one of the bed-room doors is locked, and I'm sure there's somebody in there."

CHAPTER III

The girl was standing in the open doorway of the flat, the two men stepped from the elevator. She seemed a little disconcerted at the sight of Inspector Elk, but Jim Carlton introduced him as a friend and obliterated him as a factor with one comprehensive gesture.

"I suppose I ought to have sent for the police, only there are—well, there are certain reasons why I shouldn't," she said.

Somehow Jim had never thought she could be so agitated. The discovery had evidently thrown her off her balance, and she was hardly lucid when she explained.

"I come here to collect my uncle's letters," she said. "He's abroad?"

She said breathlessly. "And every Thursday I have two women in to clean up the flat. I can't afford the time; I'm working in an office."

They had left Elk staring at her, engraving in the corridor, and it was an opportunity to make matters a little easier, if at first a little more uncomfortable, for her.

"Miss Rivers, your uncle is Arthur Ingle," said Jim kindly, and she went very red. "It is quite understandable that you shouldn't wish to advertise the fact, but I thought I'd tell you I knew, just to save you a great deal of unnecessary—"

He stopped and seemed at a loss.

"Lying is the word you want," she said frankly. "Yes, Mr. Ingle lives here, but he lived here under the name of Jackson. Did you know that?" she asked anxiously.

He nodded.

"That's the door," she pointed. The flat was of unusual construction. There was a very large dining room with a low, timbered roof and paneled walls, from which led three doors—two to the kitchenette, the other two, she explained, to Arthur Ingle's bedroom and a spare apartment which he used as a lumber room, which she indicated.

Jim tried the handle, the door was fast, and stooping down, he peered through and had a glimpse of an open window through which the yellow fog showed.

"Are these doors usually left open?"

"Always," she said emphatically. "Sometimes the cleaning women come before I return. To-night they're late, and I'm rather early."

"Where does that lead?"

"To the kitchen."

She went in front of him and, opening the door, walked into the tiny apartment. It was spotlessly clean and had one window, flush with that which he had seen through the keyhole of the next room. He looked down into a bottomless void, but just beneath was a narrow parapet. He swung one leg across the sill, only to find his arm held in a frenzied grip by the girl.

It All Depends

On What One Means By Much Doing In The War

H. C. Ferraby, in The Navy, London, says:

On the quayside of a minor naval base, where two feet of snow piled high and the cobbles were slippery with the silver frost of early morning. I met by chance a man I knew well. We stopped for a moment's chat in the lee of a storehouse wall. He was on his way to the day room, the officer's "cabin" in a railway waiting room to report his arrival and to get fresh orders.

"Much doing?" I asked. "Depends what you mean by much," he replied. "We've been at sea for 24 days with one break of nine hours at anchor. I've just finished 44 hours on the bridge without a break. It froze everything in the ship—and we nearly crashed into two different craft that we never saw for the snow until we were on top of them. Much doing?" No, nothing much. Except that there's a blinkin' war on!"

War Science

Allies Show Their Superiority Over Enemy In Many Directions

Experts are convinced that in time, in striking contrast to 1914, we lead the Germans scientifically, says a report from London.

In the first six months of war there is no proof that in any direction the Germans have led us in new applications of science for war purposes.

On the air it is definite that our machines, type for type, are superior and their expectation of life is much superior to that of their rivals.

Fears among the public that Hitler has some new form of poison gas may be discounted. Our organic chemists are now the best in the world and they are virtually certain that a new poison gas does not exist.

Popular Appointment

Mr. James S. Duncan Will Bring Experience To Task He Is Undertaking

Announcement of the appointment of Mr. James S. Duncan, vice-president and general manager of the Massey-Harris Company, as acting associate deputy minister of National Defence in charge of aviation will bring complete satisfaction and enthusiasm in circles where he is best known. His immediate task will be to organize the British Commonwealth Air Training Scheme, which will represent probably the most spectacular, but by no means the only, contribution Canada will make to the Allied war effort.

Mr. Duncan is rated one of the most dynamic and enterprising men in the industrial world, and his experience as directing genius of one of the world's greatest implement manufacturing industries will stand him in good stead as he tackles the herculean task of organizing the air project in which Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Canada are co-operating.

This is not the first time Mr. Duncan has served King and country. He enlisted as a gunner in the Heavy Siege Artillery at Portsmouth, England, in the Great War, and won his commission for efficiency and gallantry on the field. At the close of hostilities he had advanced to the rank of captain and adjutant in the Royal Field Artillery.

His resourcefulness, as a military leader is illustrated by a feat achieved during the first European war. As commander of a detachment of British Royal Engineers and French intelligence officers, Captain Duncan supervised the assembly and recovery from the danger zone of 150 Massey-Harris binders and 100 reapers and mowers from a shell-torn depot at Arras which was under German occupation. These farm machines were badly needed for the production of foodstuffs during the period which followed the unrestricted submarine warfare waged by the Hun—Toronto Globe and Mail.

Showed His Real Character

Von Ribbentrop Made Many Mistakes While Ambassador To Britain

The London correspondent of the Ottawa Journal, says:

One who may become known as Von Ribbentrop's diplomatic scapegoat as Germany's Ambassador at the Court of St. James'.

His egotistical gesture when first presented at Buckingham Palace as an insolent "Hell Hitler" salute to King George—is still a cherished memory.

Later, he got himself cold-shouldered by Mayfair even in quarters at first prepared to fess him. This was after he had, as a special guest at a West End dinner party with Royalty, launched forth on a panegyric of Nazi-ism and criticism of British decadence. Equally, redoubt of the ex-champagne agent was another gaffe. On one occasion, instead of using either English, the language of his appointed capital, or French, the language of diplomacy, Ribbentrop sent out invitations to an Embassy reception in German.

Here he tripped up badly. Some of the guests, among them, others, pretended to misread the invitation as one to dinner. But the Japanese Embassy found the best rejoinder. Their reply was in Japanese, and nobody on Ribbentrop's staff could make out a line of it.

Help Farmers

Boys Recruited From Britain's Public Schools Will Aid With Harvest

Thousands of evacuated cockneys and lads from Britain's famous public schools will be recruited to help farmers gather Britain's first war-time harvest this summer.

The ministry of agriculture, it is authoritatively reported, plans to establish "holiday land army" camps in farm areas where town schoolboys will be organized and trained to replace the men who left the land to join the fighting forces or to work in armament factories.

One Essential Thing

Staunch old Admiral Farragut said to another officer: "Dupont, do you know why you didn't get into Charleston with your Ironclads?"

"Oh, it was because the channel was so crooked," "No, Dupont, it was not that." "Well, the firing was simply horrible." "Yes, but it wasn't that." "What was it then?" "It was because you didn't believe you could go in."

Not Many Do It

Women In Ontario Towns Spend Little In Same House

The Peterborough Examiner says: We read about the new telephone directory being ready for distribution in Toronto. There were 226,000 of these books and it took 180 men and 15 trucks a week or more to attend to the delivery. It is explained that the new directory contains 77,400 new or changed listings, and that in turn must mean that many people have moved because they have not added anything like that number of new "sers during the year.

There was also something in a Montreal paper about the number of people who moved on the first day of May. Montreal is a city of some 1,200,000 and thoroughly swallowed up with the custom of living in apartments. The number of moves on the first of May amounts in the thousands.

It is much the same in many cities. People move of their own accord or they are moved by their firms. That is what made it so much by contract to read of Mrs. George Eastertbrook who died recently in Exeter, Ont., and was referred to as a lifelong resident of 72 years. Her maiden name was Mary Elizabeth Sweet; when she was married her husband moved into the family home, and she was there, she died. Born, married, and died in the same house. Never lived elsewhere in her 72 years. Widely different from the manner in which many families move hither and thither and do it frequently.

A Music Hall Favorite

Woman Who Introduced "Tipperary" 27 Years Ago Is Dead

Florrie Ford, 65, last of the old style music hall singers, who introduced a song 27 years ago that was to become the immortal marching tune of the British Tommy, died a few hours after entertaining patients at a naval hospital in Aberdeen, Scotland.

The song was "Tipperary". A music hall favorite for 40 years, Florrie sang "Tipperary" to enthusiastic audiences in 1913. Within the year it was on the lips of Britain's soldiers the world over.

Young Italian Has Built Car He Calls A Pedalauto

Italy's youngest inventor, Marcello Cretti, has built an automobile which runs a hundred miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Cretti, a boy of 15, inspired by Premier Benito Mussolini's self-sufficiency campaign, equipped his machine with bicycle pedals so that on level stretches the driver can cut off the motor and really learn what self-sufficiency means.

The commissioner of the 1934 Rome exposition has offered to construct a number of the machines for use at the fair grounds.

The car, which its inventor calls a "pedalauto", is built entirely of avional, the Italian metal which is said to be as strong as steel and light as aluminum.

Although Cretti's invention looks like a child's toy, it carries two people comfortably and travels between 35 and 40 miles an hour. The inventor believes that on a reasonable scale of production his pedalauto could be marketed for approximately $150.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

Everything that is true is God's Word, whoever said it—Zwingli.

My concern is not whether God is on our side; my great concern is to be on God's side—Lincoln.

The good you do and embody gives you the only power obtainable—Mary Baker Eddy.

A right act strikes a chord that extends through the whole universe, touches all moral intelligences, visits every world, vibrates along its whole extent, and conveys its vibrations to the very bosom of God—Bligny.

"All is of God that is and is to be; And God is good." Let this suffice us all.

Resting in childlike trust upon His will.

Who moves to His great ends unthwarted by the ill—Cowper.

Do the truth you know and you shall learn the truth you need to know—George Macdonald.

Exchange Rates

During military operations in the Far East, one side captured the other's General. An envoy was sent to negotiate his exchange.

"We offer you four colonels for him," said the envoy.

The offer was declined.

"Eight majors."

"No."

"What then?"

"We have given the matter most careful consideration, and we cannot accept less than two dozen tins of condensed milk."

Very Old Timepiece

A Saxon pocket sundial, with some claims to being the oldest existing "watch", was found two feet below the soil of a garden in Canterbury, England. It is of gold and silver, and scarcely tarnished.

In Spain 80 per cent. of the people are engaged in agriculture.

Miss Mooshian, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene at High River, formerly of Coleman, leaves shortly for Boston, and later to Oklahoma City, Okla., to attend the general assembly of the church.

Celebrating the 121st anniversary of the founding of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows on the North American continent, members of Key City Lodge No. 42, Cranbrook; Sullivan Lodge No. 35, Kimberley; and Maple Leaf Rebekah Lodge No. 19, Cranbrook, attended the United church at Cranbrook on Sunday evening last.

With the official opening July 1st of the new Columbia icefield highway which will link Jasper and Banff national parks, Major Fred Brewster, famous mountaineer who headed the Smithsonian Institute Yellowstone Pass-Peace River expedition, recalls that he guided the first American tourist, Samuel Urescott Fay, of Boston, from Jasper to Banff over the approximate route of the new highway in 1912.

It is doubtful if any other discovery of modern synthetic chemistry has created so much interest, curiosity and speculation as nylon, the first synthetic textile fibre to equal natural silk for use in women's full fashioned hosiery. Nylon is made from coal, air and water by a complicated chemical process which has been perfected after ten years of research. Nylon yarn is soon to be placed at the disposal of leading Canadian hosiery manufacturers for experimental purposes, and it is expected that stockings made from this new material will be available to the women of Canada sometime this autumn.—C-I-L Oval.

A couple more designs of small houses have reached our desk from the housing administration, department of finance, Ottawa. These houses would look nice and come in mighty handy in Alberta. But what's the use — the Aberhart government will not permit the national housing loan plan to function in Alberta. It makes us peevish every time the monthly reports on the national housing loan plan are received, and while other provinces are shown as availing themselves more and more of this loan plan, not one dollar of building is done in Alberta under the plan. And then when one thinks of the impetus it would be to employment and that money turns over five, six, seven or eight times, he must admit that it is a crying shame that a provincial government would be so obstinate about a matter so vital to the best interests of so many of our people.—Drumheller Review.

An Alberta treasury house is advertising hatching eggs from blood-tested flocks. Yes, and who in Alberta has not had to stand the test during the last four years? Something should be hatched soon!

The British Columbia department of mines suggests that miners should grow moustaches to avoid silicosis. Nature placed a moustache on a man's face for a purpose, probably as a filter. But, what on earth are side-lights or goateers for?

A young Calgary soldier, a dispatch rider with the Army Service Corps at Aldershot, christened his motorcycle "Vivian" after his girl in Calgary, and had the name inscribed on the machine. This was against regulations, so the name had to come off. It now appears that the girl Vivian had married another man in Calgary, so it's kinda hard luck all round.

The Allies' war effort is getting too little publicity in North America, according to W. G. Weston, Toronto born member of the British parliament. He said he was going to tell the British minister of information, Sir John Reith, when he got back. "Why, we are doing wonderfully well, and nobody seems to be doing anything about spreading the good news," said Mr. Weston.

Canadians in all parts of the Dominion were looking forward with pleasurable anticipation to the Cromwells' proposed trans-Canada tour. This would have been the first of its kind ever taken by an American minister. By focusing attention on Canada's tourist attractions, the tour would have given this country timely and favorable publicity throughout the U.S. press.—Financial Post.

Messrs. C. W. Mickle and W. M. Colpitts, of the Alberta government offices, Calgary, were in town the early part of the week. Mr. Mickle is inspector of fur farms.

The new governor-general of Canada is the Duke of Athlone, but according to an English friend this title is not pronounced as spelled, but is "Athl-nee," with the "o" silent.

"Exposing Coleman's Biggest Lie" will be Captain Watson's subject at the Salvation Army hall in Coleman on Sunday night at 7.30. Who is he? If you don't know, come and find out.

It is expected that at least 25,000 will attend the Canadian National Ukrainian Music Festival to be held in Edmonton on July 13 and 14. This will be the first time such festival has been held in an Alberta city.

O. L. Spencer, vice-president and managing director of the Calgary Herald, has been elected president of Ducks Unlimited (Canada), succeeding W. G. Ross, who in turn has been named chairman of the board of directors.

Mr. N. had been asked to distribute prizes at the local school. During his speech he dwelt on the benefits of education. "What a wonderful thing is education!" he said. "Now, take arithmetic. If we are educated we know that two twos make four, that four fours make sixteen, that nine nines make — and then there's history..."

After an entire evening of resolute labor, a husband and wife we know completed their joint income tax return and sent it off just before the 15th of March with a cheque, duplicate, and several statements explaining deductions claimed under various schedules. Back it came two or three days later, marked "Overweight—postage due, two cents."

An old timer of Bellevue passed away on Saturday in the person of John Coats. He had been a resident of the district since 1913, and was native of the north of England. His wife predeceased him some years ago. He is survived by one daughter, in the United States, and three sons. The remains were laid to rest at Bellevue on Monday, with A. E. Large fish fishermen are to be taboed in British Columbia. In applying for license, do not state that you are after the two, four, eight or sixteen-pounders. If you do you will get no license.

Sydney N. May, for some 22 years travelling as representative of Gault Brothers Limited, of Vancouver, one of Canada's largest dry goods firms, died suddenly in his hotel room at Invermere on the night of April 19th. "Syd" was very well known in this territory, and will be missed by the several business houses he called upon regularly during a number of years. He was born in Toronto 49 years ago, and had made his headquarters in Nelson since 1919. Surviving are his wife and three sons. Three brothers were killed in the Great War, and his only sister died about a year ago. He had many friends.

Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport, announced recently that only one radio receiving license will be required for all radio receiving sets installed in a private residence, instead of one license for each set as formerly. The ruling is retroactive to April 1st, when licenses for 1939-40 expired.

The young lady palmer at the church bazaar said to one of her girl clients, "I see by your hand you're going to be married." "Wonderful!" gurgled the girl. "You're engaged to a man named Spikins," continued the amateur seer. "Amazing!" gasped the girl. "But surely the lines of my hand do not reveal the name —?" "Lines?" sniffed the palmer. "Who said anything about lines? You're wearing the ring I returned to Mr. Spikins four weeks ago."
